DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 10/14/08 has been entered.

Response to Amendment

Claims 34-38 are new and claims 4-13, 15-17 & 25-38 are pending in the application. Claims 4-13, 15-17 & 25-33 are withdrawn from consideration and claims 34-38 are pending examination.

Claim Objections

Claim 37 is objected to because of the following informalities: the misspelling of "tack" in line 1 should be corrected to "tank". Appropriate correction is required.

Claim 38 is objected to because of the following informalities: the article "a" should be inserted between 'is' and 'cartridge'. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

1. Claim 34 recites the limitations:

"the remaining amount of fuel" in lines 5-6,

"the computer body" in line 8,

"the value" in line 8.

There is insufficient antecedent basis for these limitations in the claim.

2. Claims 34-38 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. Regarding claim 34, the limitation "a remaining-amount acquiring unit configured to acquire the remaining amount of fuel in the tank" is indefinite because the meaning of the language is unclear. Is the remaining-amount acquiring unit a tank or vessel that is suppose to capture the remaining fuel from the fuel tank? Is the remaining-amount acquiring unit a fuel gauge or sensing unit that reads or determines the amount of fuel left in a fuel tank? In light of the specification, the limitation will be interpreted to be equivalent to a fuel gauge. As such, the limitation, "a remaining-amount control unit configured to inform an operating system run on the computer body of the value obtained by subtracting a predetermined value from the remaining amount acquired by the remaining-amount acquiring unit" will be interpreted to mean subtracting a predetermined value from the fuel gauge amount to be 'the value'.

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

3. Claims 34-38 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. The limitation "a remaining-amount acquiring unit configured to acquire the remaining amount of fuel in the tank" is not described in the specification in such a way to enable one skilled in the art to make or use an electronic apparatus with essentially another unit (i.e., tank or vessel) that acquires the remaining amount of fuel from a fuel tank. Claims depending from claims rejected under 35 USC 112, first paragraph are also rejected for the same.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102/103

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 34-38 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over US 6,057,051 (Uchida).

Uchida describes a personal computer, which has a body having a display unit and a controller. A detachable fuel cell unit powers the computer and comprises a fuel cell, a fuel tank, a sensor for detecting the amount of fuel remaining in the tank and a control unit with a first storage unit (Fig. 1; 3:1-15, 3:30-40, 7:39-54). The sensor detects the amount of fuel remaining and then the amount of operation time remaining is computed. The calculated remaining operating time information is sent to the electronic apparatus through a connection terminal so the electronic apparatus' equipment can display the information (Figs. 1 & 5; 7:39-46). The method discloses detecting the remaining amount of fuel and then computing the amount of remaining operating time and the elapsed operating time (7:50-55).

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection as required by the new claims.

Applicant's arguments concerning the specification objection are persuasive and therefore withdrawn.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. US 5,976,725 and US Publication 2004/0219398.
